Some fifty-five years ago, a young wo man of prepossessing appearance was seated in a small back room of a house in Copenhagan, weeping bitterly. In her lap lay a few trinkets and other small articles, evidently keepsakes which she had received from time to time. She took up one after another, and turned them over and over; but she could scarcely distinguish them through her blinding tears. Then she buried her face in her hands, and rocked to and fro in agony.

"Oh!" moaned she. "and is it come to the? All my dreams of happiness are vanished-all my hopes are dead! He will even go without bidding me farewell! Ab! HIMLEN! that I have lived to see this bitter day! Lovet være Gud!"

At this moment a hasty tap at the door was followed by the entrance of the object of her grief. And again her sobs burst forth.

Toorvalsden abruptly rose from his chair, and paced the room in agitation .-He was much distressed, and once or twice he glarced at Amalie in evident bes'tation. His past life, the pleasures of his youth, the affection of Amalie, the anguish of his parents at the approaching separation, all vividly passed in review, and whispered him to stay and be happy in the city of his birth. But a vision of Rome rose also, and beckoned him thither to earn renown, wealth, and earthly immortality. The pride of conscious genious swelled his soul, and he felt that the die was cast forever.

He re-seated himself by the side of Amalie, and once more took her hand .-She looked up, and in one glance read his inmost thoughts.

"Co," said she, "go and fulfill your destiny God's will be done! You will become a great man-you will be the companion of princes and kings, and your to Dr. A. J. Vanderslice, of Philadelphia, who cured me mame will extend the fame of your countries.

Only promise this: when you are hereafter in the full blaze of your triumph, sometimes turn aside from the high-born, lovely dames who are thronging around, and drop one tear to the memory of the lowly Danish girl who loved you better than herself. Bertel, FARVEL!"

The next day Thorvalsden quitted Co. penhagen for Rome, where he resided penhagen for Rome, where he resided nearly the whole remainder of his long life, and more than realised his own wildest aspirations of fame. But the prophecy of poor Amalie was literally fulfilled—he never more beheld his parents, nor her, his first true love!

Nearly half a century had elapsed,

Nearly half a century had elapsed,

Nearly half a century had elapsed, and again the scene was Copenhagen.—
The streets were densely crowded with eager sorrowing spectators, and every window of every house was fill d with sadly expectant faces. At length the cry, "They come!" was echoed from group to group, and the crowds swayed to and fro, under the sympathetic swell of one common emotion.

[Conclusion to-morrow.]

Some of the mas thick as the little finger, after which the boy got perfectly well. I think in more than helf the cases of sickness of children, the use of the Vermifuge will be altthat is needed. It has seved many lives in that part of the country, and we think we could not do without it. In my son's family, where there are several children, your Vermifuge is almost the only remedy they ever have occasion to use for the various aliments that little ones are subject to. There is no remedy more generally known or more highly esteemed in west Tennessee than your Vermifuge, and it gives me pleasure to offer this testimony to its excellence.
